Context of Matthew 18

This chapter is a single sermon by our Lord on the specific theme of the childlikeness of the believer, speaking directly to the reality that we are spiritual children with all the weaknesses that childhood implies. The first lesson in this sermon is that everyone who enters the kingdom does so as a child. Jesus then teaches that all of us in the kingdom must be treated as children, cared for as children, disciplined as children, and forgiven as children. It is no exaggeration to say that this is the single greatest speech our Lord ever gave on life among the redeemed people in His Church.

Keys to Text

Like a Child: The Greek word paidion, translated “little child” (18:2) identifies a very young child, sometimes an infant. Jesus loved children, and they loved Him, and as He sat before the disciples, holding the children, He had a great spot for teaching them.

Read Matthew 18:1-5

At that time the disciples came to Jesus, saying, “Who then is greatest in the kingdom of heaven?” And He called a child to Him self and set him before them, and said, “Truly I say to you, unless you are converted and become like children, you shall not enter the kingdom of heaven. Whoever then humbles himself as this child, he is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven.”

1. How did Jesus teach His bickering disciples a lesson by hugging a small child?
2. What does it mean to be the “greatest in the kingdom of heaven”?
3. What does this passage teach about conversion?
4. How is it possible to be humble like a child?
5. Why do you think Jesus used the children as an example to the others?

In his first public comments since Coach Mike Shanahan questioned Redskins quarterback Donovan McNabb's ability to finish this past Sunday's game, McNabb declined Tuesday to criticize his coach's decision to bench him with 1:50 remaining and Washington trailing Detroit by just six points. “Coach makes his decisions,” McNabb said. “I can only say how I feel and what I feel think is best for me.” Besides all the speculation about McNabb being benched, the Vikings cut future hall of famer, Randy Moss. It's not easy being humble in the NFL. However, Jesus taught that the person who humbles himself as a child (see Matthew 18:4), is declared the greatest in the kingdom of heaven. The verb behind “humbles” can be literally translated as “making low.” In God's eyes, the one who lowers himself is the one who is elevated; the one who genuinely considers himself to be the least is the one God considers to be the greatest. www.nebraskafca.org
